⇒ FROM THE COMMITTEE CHAIR ⇐

Fellow Conference Attendees,

Welcome to Norfolk, Virginia! We're so glad to have you here and excited to invite you to visit our flagship campus during this year's Annual Conference. As your host sponsor, we're proud to showcase our institution and be part of such an important event for our industry.

This year's program is packed with incredible sessions led by your peers—focused on closing workforce gaps, expanding diversity and equity in aviation, and strengthening the future of air travel. We hope you take full advantage of the discussions, networking, and everything the conference has to offer.

Norfolk is a city with a deep connection to aviation and transportation, home to the world's largest naval base and a rich maritime history. While you're here, we hope you get a chance to explore the vibrant waterfront, enjoy some amazing seafood, and experience the local arts and culture that make this city so special.

A huge thank you to our sponsors, especially Piedmont Airlines, our presenting sponsor. Your support makes this conference possible, and we're grateful for your commitment to the industry. And of course, a special shoutout to Crystal and Tarra, who do the hard work behind the scenes to make this conference a success year after year. We all know this wouldn't come together without them, and we appreciate everything they do!

We're looking forward to a great conference and hope you enjoy your time here in Norfolk.

Safe travels, and welcome!

Nicole Gleaton

FAA Designated Mechanic Examiner Recurrent Seminar—Aviation Institute of Maintenance, 2329 E Little Creek Rd, Norfolk, Room 108

Required recurrent training for designated mechanic examiners, presented by the FAA. Advanced and separate registration is required.

BREAKOUT DESCRIPTIONS

1. Regulatory Update from FAA Safety Standards

Engage with agency and council leadership on initiatives impacting aviation technician education including certification, enforcement and oversight, inspector training, and plans for part 147 performance reporting.

Crystal Maguire, Executive Director, ATEC

Kevin Morgan, Airmen Section Manager, Aircraft Maintenance Division, FAA

2. FAA Testing: A Comprehensive Look at the Certification System

Get an update from FAA Airman Certification Standards (ACS) Working Group leadership on activities impacting the certification system including airman certification standards revisions, handbook updates, and recommended improvements to mechanic testing.

Jackie Spanitz, General Manager, Aviation Supplies & Academics, Inc.

Shelly R. Waddell Smith, Acting Manager, Testing Standards Section, FAA

3. Revising Airman Certification Standards: Recommendations to Improve Maintenance Training

Industry stakeholders are collaborating on proposed revisions to the FAA Mechanic ACS. Learn about recommended updates and how members can provide input to inform future versions of the standards.

Buck Gaines, Manager, Tech Ops Training, Alaska Airlines

Justin W. Madden, Managing Director, Engineering & Maintenance, Airlines for America

Zackary Nicklin, Director of Aviation Maintenance, St. Cloud Technical & Community College

Jackie Spanitz, General Manager, Aviation Supplies & Academics, Inc.

4. Increasing Access to FAA Oral and Practical Testing

Get an update on several new initiatives aimed at expanding access to airman testing, including the implementation of Organization Designation Authorization for airman testing and expanded options for designee testing location approvals.

Jennifer Lentz, Manager, Airworthiness Delegation Section, FAA

5. Implementing Safety Management Systems Into an A&P Program

Safety Management Systems (SMS) have become a cornerstone of aviation operations. While not a regulatory requirement for part 147 programs, modeling SMS principles can benefit institutions and students by introducing risk management concepts and fostering a culture of safety and accountability.

Stephanie Brown, Director of Aviation Safety, Purdue University

6. ATEC Academy: Empowering Excellence in Aviation Education

As the shortage of teachers and technicians continues to grow, so too will the number of individuals moving from the hangar to the classroom with limited teaching experience. Hear about an ATEC resource crafted to tackle these issues, offering a personalized approach to aid recently appointed A&P instructors and trainers in navigating the intricacies of teaching.

Sean J Glassberg, Owner, Educator Training & Consulting

Sheryl Oxley, Aviation Program Coordinator, Tulsa Technology Center

Michael Sasso, A&P Chief, Aviation Maintenance Technician Program, Aims Community College

BREAKOUT DESCRIPTIONS

7. Leveraging Industry-Based Certifications to Meet FAA Airman Certification Standards

Explore how the National Coalition of Certification Centers (NC3) industry-based certifications align with the FAA Mechanic ACS to help institutions enhance student outcomes, meet regulatory requirements, and elevate program value. Gain practical insights from a part 147's successful implementation of NC3 certifications to meet ACS objectives.

Charlie Cook, Aviation Department Head, PIMA Community College

Craig Foucht, Director of Development, NC3

Ryan Lucas, Regional Education Manager, Snap-on Tools

8. Analyzing the A&P Instructor Shortage and Pathways to Solutions

While the shortage of airframe and powerplant technicians is well known, the lack of qualified Part 147 instructors is a growing concern. Researchers will present the results of a survey on A&P instructors, highlighting the challenges they face that may lead to job turnover or early retirement, and discuss strategies to address this critical issue.

Timothy Ropp, Professor, Purdue University

Tracy L. Yother, Assistant Professor, Purdue University

9. Preparing the Workforce for Urban Air Mobility

As urban air mobility develops, a strong aviation maintenance workforce is critical. This panel will explore how emerging technologies are shaping education and share strategies to meet the demands of this evolving industry.

Stephen Ley, Associate Professor, Utah Valley University

Kapil Madathil, Professor, Departments of Industrial and Civil Engineering, Clemson University

Zackary Nicklin, Director of Aviation Maintenance, St. Cloud Technical and Community College

10. Bridging the Gap: Industry-Education Collaboration to Enhance A&P Training

New hires are increasingly coming directly from A&P schools with little or no work experience. This shift has created technical and operational risks, leading to longer lead times for technicians to get up to speed. Hear how one part 147 program is partnering with an airline and local schools to integrate more transport category aircraft content into its curriculum, helping future employees achieve a smoother and more effective onboarding experience.

Kevin Alexander, Director of Aviation Programs, University of Alaska Fairbanks

Greg Woodruff, Instructor, Clover Park Technical College

11. Happenings on the Hill: Legislative Wins and Workforce Development Initiatives

Last spring, Congress passed a multi-year reauthorization bill to fund the FAA through 2028. The landmark legislation addressed key priorities for ATEC, including expanded workforce development funding and dedicated pathways for transitioning military personnel. Get an update on implementation of these initiatives and how they will impact aviation technician education and workforce development.

Jared Britt, President, Aviation Education Academy

Rob Cush, Legislative Affairs Director, Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association

12. Employer-Based Training: Expanding Access to Aircraft Maintenance Careers

Join an industry-wide roundtable to explore employer-based training strategies, including apprenticeships, internships, gateway programs, and partnerships with education and labor organizations to address workforce demands. Hear insights and share innovative approaches to create and grow aviation maintenance pathways.

Veronica Leacock Borchardt, Calibrate Partnership Manager, United Airlines

Jeremy Cooper, Calibrate Senior Manager, United Airlines

Scott Ferris, Calibrate Director, United Airlines

BREAKOUT DESCRIPTIONS

13. Adopting Immersive Technologies: Training the Next Generation of Technicians

Hear about new training technologies and organizations that are adopting virtualized training products as part of their strategic roadmap.

Douglas Fajardo, CEO & Founder, Xennial Digital

Sean Gallagan, Chief Executive Officer, Aviation Workforce Solutions

Chris Proscia, Aviation Maintenance Program Manager, University of Maryland Eastern Shore

Shawn Villarreal, Director, Technical Support and Engineering, Piedmont Airlines

14. Discover Choose Aerospace

Explore the ins and outs of the general aviation maintenance curriculum, developed in partnership with ATEC to create secondary pathways into part 147 programs. Learn about the curriculum, how to implement it, and strategies for partnerships and incorporation of cost-effective, hands-on labs.

Kelly Filgo, Director of Operations, Choose Aerospace

Tonja L. Norwood, STEM Division Manager, Oklahoma CareerTech

15. Aviation Maintenance Technician Schools Utilizing Choose Aerospace

Discover how part 147 programs are leveraging Choose Aerospace to enhance their recruitment strategies. Hear firsthand success stories, learn best practices, and explore how your program can maximize the impact of Choose Aerospace in student outreach and enrollment efforts.

Kelly Filgo, Director of Operations, Choose Aerospace

James Hall, Vice President, Aviation and Workforce Development, WSU Tech

Matthew Harter, Assistant Professor, Southwestern Illinois College

April Lanotte, STEM Integration Lead, National Aeronautics and Space Administration

Thomas Laxson, Department Chair, Portland Community College

Michael Sasso, Airframe and Powerplant Chief, Aims Community College

Scott Sykes, Chief Development Officer, US Aviation Academy

16. Building Beyond the Basics: Transforming Education with the Choose Aerospace Curriculum

Discover how one high school program leveraged the Choose Aerospace curriculum as a foundation to build a high-performance initiative, expanding beyond the classroom to develop internship pathways, employment opportunities, and matriculation partnerships.

Kelly Filgo, Director of Operations, Choose Aerospace

Denise Hensley, Career and Technology Coordinator, Academic Services, Putnam City Schools

Tonja L. Norwood, STEM Division Manager, Oklahoma CareerTech

17. A Targeted Approach to English Training for Maintenance Technicians

This session explores a proposed methodology for teaching English to future aviation professionals, emphasizing English for Occupational Purposes principles. Attendees will learn how tailored language training helps technicians meet communication standards, enhancing safety and efficiency in global aviation operations.

Anne E. Lomperis, Chief Solution Partner, Language Training Designs

Denis Manson, Director, Ten Hammers Pty Ltd

BREAKOUT DESCRIPTIONS

18. Increasing A&P Certification Rates: Driving the Next Generation of Technicians

One of the most effective ways to meet the growing demand for aviation mechanics is to increase the number of students who take the FAA test. While the rates are trending up, 40 percent of graduates are not certificated. Hear from A&P schools with successful strategies and tools for measuring success.

James Hall, Vice President, Aviation and Workforce Development, WSU Tech

Adam Norwood, Director of Education, Aviation Institute of Maintenance

19. Teaching Tough Topics: Innovative Approaches to Challenging Concepts in A&P Education

Engage in a collaborative exchange, share your own strategies, and gain insights from peers on the challenge of imparting knowledge and skills required of certificated mechanics. Explore the complexities A&P schools face when teaching challenging concepts and discover creative solutions employed by our panelists and fellow conference attendees.

Omar Aguilera, Instructor, California Aeronautical University

David Blanton, Director, Aviation Maintenance Technician Program, Liberty University

Philip Bos, Aviation Maintenance Curriculum Developer, Northeastern Technical College

20. Launching Your A&P School: Navigating Costs, Equipment, Funding, and Regulations

Embark on the journey of establishing a certificated aviation program with insights from seasoned experts. Explore the costs, necessary equipment, available funding opportunities, and regulatory requirements as our panel shares experience gained from years of launching part 147 programs.

Jared Britt, President, Aviation Education Academy

Sean Gallagan, Chief Executive Officer, Aviation Workforce Solutions

Michael Sasso, A&P Chief, Aviation Maintenance Technician Pr
